ACT XVI.

Act for Redress of the Complaints and grievances of the People, against Masters, Collectors, Officers and Souldiers.

5. July, 1649.

THE Estates of Parliament taking in to their serious consideration the manifold grievances and complaints within the Kingdom against Masters, for oppressing their Tenants in outricks of horse and foot, payment of the monethly Maintenance, and in Quarterings, as also against Officers and Souldiers, and Collectors of moneys for their disorderly carriage and unjust dealing. For remedy and redresse herein, they do Statute and Ordain,

1 That the severall Presbyteries send in to the Committee of Estates, a list of nine or ten understanding and conscientious men, that upon consideration thereof, and such other Information as shall be given to the Committee of Estates concerning these or any other persons, they may make choyce of five or six, to employ in that trust, and any three of them to have power to do and put in execution all things within the bounds of each Presbitery, which are referred to them by this Parliament, and that all grivances and complaints for wrongs done since the first of October last, or which shall be committed in tyme comming, being such as are by this Act referred to them by the Parliament, shall be presented to the said persons so nominated and chosen, and that the person first nominated in the Commission, shall convene the rest at their first meeting, and take their oaths for the faithfull discharge of their duty, and then the next in Commission shall take his Oath; and that thereafter they meet at such times and places as they shall thinke fit, That they shall have power to convene all persons interestted within the bounds of the Presbytery before them, to take the Oaths of parties, and to examine witnesse upon Oath, when when they shall see it needfull, and that all Officers and Souldiers shall be assistant to them upon their direction for executing the power committed to them.

2 That in all Levies of horse, the Tenant shall only furnish a sufficient man, and shall be free of all charge and expence whatsoever, unlesse they be rentallers or others, who have lands set unto them under the known worth and value, in which case, the Commisioners of each Presbytery to be chosen as aforesaid, shall have power to determine what shall be the proportion of the rentaler or others aforesaid, according to the ease they have of the land under the known value, Consideration being had what the tenant gave to the master at his entrie to the lands, together with the yearly dutie and service; And that no rentaller, nor other aforesaid, shall be lyable to the payment of any part of the said levy, but upon decreet of the Commissioners aforesaid, & that the heretors in the interim put forth the Levie; It being alwayes understood, that where rentallers are already valued, distinct from the heritors by the Commissioners appointed for the valuation of the shire that they shall pay conform to their valuation.

3 That in the Levies of foot the master shall find armes, and pay the advance or loan money, and that the tenant shall onlie find a sufficient man, and shall give unto him that shall goe forth the sum appointed by Act of Parliament to be given by tenants, unlesse they be rentallers or others before mentioned, in which case, the said Commissioners shall determine as aforesaid what shall be their proportion.

4 That no master shall for benefitt, spleen or private revenge, put forth any tenant or servant in Levies, but that where there is any such complaint, the Commissioners aforesaid shall iudge of the fitnes of the person.

5 That the Monethlie maintenance shall onlie be payed by the master, and the tenant tenant to be free, unless they be rentallers or others as aforesaid, in which case, the Commissioners are to determine their proportions as is before expressed.

6 That all quarterings, whether local or transeunt shalbe allowed in payment of the Monthly maintenance in manner following, viz. that the master, or such as have power from the master to doe his affairs, shall deliver to the Collector a certificate, subscribed by two of the Commissioners aforesaid, that he hath allowed to his tenants the said quarterings (which are also to be instructed according to the act of Parliament) in their mail or yearly rent and duty, and given them discharge for the same, before he get allowance of the quarterings in payment of the monethly maintenance, & that the Collector deliver in the said certificate to the General Commissary; Or in case the master refuse to give the said certificate to the Collector, that then the collector bring two of the Commissioners certificate of the master his refusal, and if the Collector shall fail therein, that then he make accompt to the General Commissarie, for the whole monthlie maintenance, without any deduction for quarterings, and that the Commissioners take care that the masters so refusing doe allow the said quarterings to the tenant in their mail and duties.

7 And because quarterings upon particular persons, may exceed their proportion of the monethly maintenance, It is therefore statute and ordained, that the Collector of every shire shall make payment to all such persons as shall be so overburdened with quarterings out of the monethly maintenance of the shire, at the direction of the committee of war; And if the whole monethlie maintenance of any shire shall be exhausted that then the Generall Commissarie shall make payment to them for the said quarterings out of the monethly maintenance of other shires whose maintenance is not exhausted by quarterings: And in case any master shall thrall his tenants, and forcethem to lay out any monies in levies otherwise then according to the directions of the Parliament, or being desired, shall not allow them the maintenance when they have been necessitated to pay the same for their masters, or quarterings, not exceeding the Maintenance; The Estates of Parliament do Declare, that upon probation thereof before the said Commissioners (the master for so doing shall beside restitution to the tenant) pay as much to the Commissioners for the use of the publick.

8 That where tenants have not concurred in James Grahams rebellion, or been accessorie to the late unlawfull Engagement against England, or the late Rebellion in the north, but have suffered therein, effectually course be taken for their ease and relief, that it be not in their masters power to oppress and destroy them; And that the losses of all such tenants as have suffered for their affection (there masters being guilty of any of the crimes aforesaid) be cognosed and tryed before the said Commissioners, and what allowance and deduction shall be decerned by them, to be retained from their aforesaid masters (guilty as said is) shall be a sufficient exoneration and discharge to them of the mails and duties pro tanto, and is to be so allowed by all and whatsoever Judges before whom the said duties are to be persued. And that the master be not permitted to pursue them for these duties before their own Courts, and if the master shall do otherwise, the tenant to have repetition pro tanto, provided, that nothing herein contained shall extend to infringe any capitulation approved by Parliament.

9 That all Collectors of monies within shires have testificats of their honestie and fidelitie from the Presbyterie, and subcollectors from the sessions where they live.

10 That no Collectors shall quarter souldiers upon any for deficiency in payment of publick dues, unless there be intimation given six dayes before to the President, or in his absence, to any two of the Committee of war of the shire & to the partie deficient; And that no officer shall quarter souldiers upon any for their deficiency in payment of of publick dues, unless they have a new warrant for the same, under the Collectors hand, or have order from the Committee of Estates or generall Commissarie: And if any collector or officer doe otherwise, that he shall be cashiered and removed.

11 That if any Collector shall exact more from any master or tenant, then the just proportion, or shall cause them make twice payment of the same sum, that he shall pay the double thereof to the persons whom he hath so wrongd, and not only be removed from his office, but shalbe declared incapable of any trust hereafter, likewise if any Collector shall refuse to allow quarterings from the first of this month, being rightlie instructed, and within the monthlie maintenance, he shal be punished in the same manner, and this is without prejudice of the Act of Parliament for relief of preceding quarterings.

12 That if any officer or souldier shall exact money by paction or otherwayes from any master or tenant to Burgh or land beside their pay, viz. in time coming twelve pence for the trooper, and six pence for the foot souldier, or shal plunder any goods, that he shall repay the double unto them, forfeit all his arrears to the publick, be cashiered with disgrace, and declared incapable of any trust hereafter, and shall be further punished according to the Articles of war.

13 That in case any officer or souldier, shall force master or tenant to Burgh or land, to give him a discharge when he hath payed no money, or lets then his quarterings extend to, or shall offer any violence against master or tenant, by beating them or otherwayes, the same Punishment shall be inflicted on him.

14 That if any officer or souldier shall in the place of the country where they quarter, wilfullie thrust his horse into cornes, or meddews which use to be mown yearlie, or where there is young planting, that they shall forfeit a moneths means: And if any officer or souldier shall at his own hand presume to take any mans horse for riding, or any other use, the officer or souldier so doing, shall pay the price of the horse to the owner, and also forfeit a moneths means.

15 That if any troop, or Companie, or part thereof shall quarter in any place, and at their removal, shall nither pay compleatlie for their quarters, nor leave a ticket (which they are to doe without demanding any money for the same) or shall leave a ticket for a shorter time then they did quarter, that there shalbe detained of the officers pay, who had the charge of that troop or company upon the place, the double of what shall be found due for the quarter, and in case the officers pay be not sufficient to defray what shalbe so restand, that the remainder thereof shalbe defalked out of the souldiers pay, and given to the party on whom they did quarter.

16 That no troop nor Company shall in their transient quarters stay above one night in a place, and that the horse shall march at least fifteen miles, and the foot ten miles, except upon the Lords day or otherwayes, that the double of every nights quarter shalbe allowed out of their pay to those upon whom they quarter, unless there shall be an evident necessity or order from a Generall Officer.

17 That to prevent the abuse of officers and souldiers in demanding extraordinary fare, their pay be delivered to them, at the end of every fourteen dayes (or sooner if they remove) by the shire, or collector of the shire where they are quartered; and that they shall pay ready mony for whatsoever they take for themselves, their horse, and the servants of Commanders, at the ordinarie rates of these places where they are quartered, without extortion, and if any officer or souldier, receiving their pay as aforesaid shall do otherwayes, that they shall forfeit a moneths means for the first fault, and if after complaint made, they shall continue so to do, that they shall be cashiered.
